Women in the Life and Mission of the Church

Matters for Consideration

Churches all over the world have expressed a clear request that the active contribution of women would be recognised and valued, and that their pastoral leadership increase in all areas of the Church's life and mission. In order to give better expression to the gifts and charisms of all and to be more responsive to pastoral needs, how can the Church include more women in existing roles and ministries? If new ministries are required, who should discern these, at what levels and in what ways?

Different positions have been expressed regarding women's access to the diaconal ministry. For some, this step would be unacceptable because they consider it a discontinuity with Tradition. For others, however, opening access for women to the diaconate would restore the practice of the Early Church. Others still, discern it as an appropriate and necessary response to the signs of the times, faithful to the Tradition, and one that would find an echo in the hearts of many who seek new energy and vitality in the Church. Some express concern that the request speaks of a worrying anthropological confusion, which, if granted, would marry the Church to the spirit of the age.

Discussion of this question is also related to the wider ongoing reflection on the theology of the diaconate (cf. below Chapter 11).

Proposals

Local churches are encouraged to extend their work of listening, accompaniment and care to the most marginalised women in their social contexts.

It is urgent to ensure that women can participate in decision-making processes and assume roles of responsibility in pastoral care and ministry. The Holy Father has significantly increased the number of women in positions of responsibility in the Roman Curia. This should also happen at other levels of Church life, in consecrated life and dioceses. Provision needs to be made in Canon Law accordingly.

Theological and pastoral research on the access of women to the diaconate should be continued, benefiting from consideration of the results of the commissions specially established by the Holy Father, and from the theological, historical and exegetical research already undertaken. If possible, the results of this research should be presented to the next Session of the Assembly.

Cases of labour injustice and unfair remuneration within the Church need to be addressed especially for women in consecrated life, who are too often treated as cheap labour.

Women's access to formation programmes and theological study needs to be considerably expanded. We suggest that women should also be integrated into seminary teaching and training programs to foster better formation for ordained ministry.

There is a need to ensure that liturgical texts and Church documents are more attentive to the use of language that takes into equal consideration both men and women, and also includes a range of words, images and narratives that draw more widely on women's experience.

We propose that women receive appropriate formation to enable them to be judges in all canonical processes.

St Marys Papakura – Financial Update

Parish Operations

The table below shows our normal operating income and expenses for the past 3 years

Income	For the year ending
	31 Dec 21	31 Dec 22	31 Dec 23
Sunday Collections	91,433	127,542	150,798
General Donations	30,039	46,113	14,374
Fundraising	500	100	2,008
Sales and Other Income	5,196	2,406	6,719

Total Expenses	144,403	169,579	232,279
Net Operating Surplus	-17,235	6,582	-58,380

- low income in the 2021 year due to COVID lockdowns which led to a loss that year.
- 2022 - Sunday collections increased and we received major donations boosting our income and led to a small surplus for the year.
- 2023 we saw donations decrease and our operating costs rise due to inflation. Additional repairs and maintenance (on our presbytery, hall and church) was also required which led to the large loss in the year.

Building Fund

The table below shows the building fund donations received over the last 3 years
